Dr. Morrell To Discuss 'The Sino-Soviet Split'

"The Sino-Soviet Split—Fact or Fallacy" will be discussed today by Dr. Edwin Morrell, chairman of the BYU Political Science Dept. The meeting will take place at 12:10 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center Memorial Lounge, all students and faculty are invited to attend.

The discussion is part of the World Affairs Week sponsored by the ASBYU Academic Office.

FROM SLC

Dr. Morrell grew up in Salt Lake City. He attended the University of Utah for two years and, following a Czechoslovakian mission, transferred to the BYU, where he received his B.A. degree in history in 1956.

He continued his studies at the graduate level at Harvard University, receiving his M.A. degree in political science in 1959. He then resided in Moscow, USSR, for nine months during 1959-60 while conducting research on organized labor in the Soviet Union, and completed work for his Ph.D. at Harvard this year.

Dr. Morrell's specialty is Soviet Eastern Europe and Russia, and he is particularly interested in Soviet foreign relations and general theories of government and politics.

RUSSIAN STUDIES

Dr. Morrell is currently chairman of the Political Science Department at BYU, and served previously as co-coordinator for the Russian Studies program.

Concerning the Sino-Soviet topic, Professor Morrell will discuss the three basic questions he feels are important to the issue:

● To what extent does a dispute exist?

● Is this dispute made worse or lessened by the ideological similarities of China and the Soviet Union?

● What other factors are involved, such as the countries' differences in location, history, etc.

"Because of Dr. Morrell's interest and experience in Russian relations, his lecture on a currently important problem should be particularly interesting. We urge every one to attend," commented Lars Solander, general chairman of World Affairs Week.

'Thin Veil' McConkie Explains

"All members are entitled to revelation . . . salvation cannot come without revelation," were only two of the many guiding thoughts conveyed by Elder Bruce E. McConkie in Tuesday's Devotional.

Elder McConkie, a member of the First Council of Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, held the attention of a near capacity student audience by concluding his comments around the possibility of all Church members having the power to reveal personal revelations.

THIN VEIL

"The veil is thin and God will manifest not only to leaders but to members," said the official. Elder McConkie continued by saying, "More time must be devoted to spiritual knowledge instead of intellectual knowledge."

Quoting Joseph Smith, Elder McConkie read, "could you gaze into heaven for five minutes you would know more than all that was ever written of the subject."

RELIGIOUS FORMULA

The leader introduced his formula for becoming "personally involved with God."

- search the scriptures
- keep the commandments
- ask in faith

Elder McConkie was accompanied by his wife in addition to approximately one hundred visiting Norwegian Saints. Those in attendance were also honored with several inspiring musical selections by the BYU a cappella choir.

Dr. Fowler To Speak At Forum

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Duluth, Minn., Dr. Frederick Curtis Fowler, will speak to Brigham Young University students and faculty at the Forum Assembly Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

In addition to being pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Duluth, Minn., Rev. Fowler is the chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Right-to-Work Committee.

SERVES ON COMMITTEES

He has previously served as vice-chairman of the All-American Conference to Combat Communism, president of the National Association of Evangelicals and on the advisory council of the Institute of Applied Citizenship.

Dr. Fowler received the master's degree from Princeton University and his theological training at the Theological Seminary at Princeton. He has received two doctor's degrees, a doctor of divinity and a doctor of literature from Colorado.

A ROSE IS A ROSE IS A ROSE...
The Townsmen will play for Saturday's Alumni Roses dinner-dance in the Skyroom. Dress for the event, which begins at 8 p.m., is evening wear. Tickets, at $5.50 per couple, are available at the Wilkinson Center Information desk.

Graduate Awards To Be Outlined

Each junior and senior with a GPA of 3.0 or higher should attend a meeting Thursday at 4:10 p.m. in the multipurpose area of the Smith Family Living Center.

According to Wesley Lloyd, Dean of the Graduate School all major graduation award opportunities will be presented and discussed by a member of the faculty committee on graduation awards.

Is America Safe For Marriage?

Two out of five American marriages are now ending in divorce.

J. Edgar Hoover reports that 40% of our murders result from marital conflict, and that 75% of our juvenile delinquents come from broken homes.

Over 52% of all court time is spent on divorce and its problems (custody, support, orders to show cause, etc.) and the cost to the taxpayer is going sky high. In California alone, hundreds of millions are being spent on matters relating to divorce. Welfare agencies are being swamped by the children of all these divorces. The measure of marriage should be maturity and seriousness of intent; the measure of divorce that all life has gone out of the marriage and that every attempt at reconciliation has been made.

The long history of marriage and divorce folkways and laws is complicated by varying interpretations of scripture, money making, the changing status of women, and socioeconomic upheavals.

Under Puritan law, marriage was an entirely private arrangement over which neither church nor state had any coerciveness.

The puritan settlers of New England would not allow a religious marriage. This had come about due to the corruption of old world clergy and church lawyers in selling annuaments—the grounds for church annulment being as far fetched as our modern civil grounds for divorce.

Commercialized divorce, where our courts function as collection agencies, came about when early American legislatures handed over divorce to judges and their discretion.

We have seen an incredible shift of judicial bias in the past 100 years. Judges have gone from a strict law favoring women to sex determining "justice."

The present divorce laws in the U.S. vary considerably from state to state. Many of the laws are over one hundred year old and not workable in our present age.

Remedies and solutions vary. Many states are already changing divorce laws to fit the problems of the 20th century. A few states have set up "ad hoc" voluntary conciliation courts that have been working successfully for several years.

The Maine legislature recently passed a law establishing a Department of Family Relations as a replacement for Divorce Courts and antiquated court procedures.

The Department is composed of Family Counselors who are certified to train men and women counselors. These counselors are licensed in the fields of psychology and social work, and professionally trained to cope with the emotional and financial problems which wreck marriage.

This new agency has completely eliminated the historical role of the Divorce Court.

Because it exercises the power to formulate, nullify, administer and adjudicate all matters pertaining to family relations, including marriage, it has caused considerable controversy within the legal profession, the bench and state legislatures. One section of the new act actually places the minimum age for marriage at 20.

The American Bar Association has already announced that "an attempt to create non-lawyer state agencies to handle domestic disputes . . . from the legal profession will be vigorously opposed." The reason for this statement is obvious.

If the profit of large financial gain (divorce is as much "bread and butter" to the lawyer as delivering babies is to the doctor) is removed and the money taken out of divorce, there will be no incentive for some attorneys to encourage divorce proceedings.

Most experts on the subject of divorce agree that the problem in the United States has grown to staggering proportions bound to effect future U.S. families and generations.

The question then is: how to reverse the growing trend of divorces and encourage more marriages.

Obviously, the first thing is eliminate antiquated, arbitrary, and arrogant divorce laws. Help should be sought from qualified behavioral scientists.

The court system seems to have failed if the divorce rate is jumping so high.

Divorces which take place in the electrified atmosphere of the courtroom push husbands and wives even further apart and encourage fraud.

The present divorce system should be replaced by Family Centers where everyone seeking a divorce could be interviewed and tested.

Each Center would be staffed by social workers, psychologists, economists, economists, lawyers skilled in real estate and finance. These experts would work to save a marriage by counseling, guidance and the arbitration of all stress situations. Workers at the Center would help couples realize that both are partly at fault for the alienation.

Custody could be awarded in the interests of the children and the recommendations of the Center could then be examined and ratified by a judge.

Second, the Center could also provide material for pre-marital education in our schools. This would help prevent unsound marriages from taking place and it would prepare young people for marriage. (Responsibilities, etc., NOT sex issues.)

Solution must be possible. Maybe it will take years for marital legislators will realize that outdated divorce laws must be eliminated. Unfortunately, the strong tentacles of the legal profession may prevent efforts to get divorce proceedings off the courts.

But it would be well worth the necessary effort if we could stop the spiraling divorces, preserve the family units, and save America for marriage.

Foreign Policy Debated By Team

Four BYU debaters explored the pros and cons of changing the U.S. foreign policy Monday evening.

The debate, sponsored by the Academic Vice President for World Affairs Week, debated the resolution that the U.S. should substantially reduce its foreign policy commitments.

The affirmative team asserted that political, humanitarian, military and economic reasons demanded that a change be made.

They indicated that 90 percent of the foreign aid now goes to 5 nations for somewhat biased or political reasons. This money is used for economic, political, and military purpose.

ONE PROBLEM

But one of the problems the affirmative team saw was that if a question arises between economic and military needs of the underdeveloped nations, the military always gets preference. The resulting evil is that economic problems continue to exist, they said.

To solve the problem, the affirmative proposed that a World Bank be established. Members nations could then receive economic aid in the way of loans.

FRIENDSHIP

Young women, on occasion, used to let young men kiss them on the premise it symbolized their love and young men with clandestine sagaciousness used to say they loved them so that they could get that kiss.

But while physical attraction and love are altogether basic primary importance, they seem to be losing ground to a relationship that might be described as friend ship.

And by friendship, I mean a relationship between a boy and girl that is neither platonic nor romantic, but falls somewhere in between the two.

MUCH DEMANDS

More specifically, romantic love demands that the individual being loved give up all members of the opposite sex in return for devotion, while friendship implies that the relationship is characterized by the bond of common interests and an emotional sentiment, but disavows any commitment since the two are apart.

Friendship will never replace romantic love, I should think, but within the context of holding a subordinate position to the other two, it does retain a number of distinct advantages.

Since friendship seems to be gaining in popularity, the explanation behind more and more dating, its virtue are worthy of mention.

EXPLOITATION

First of all, instead of the great American adage of, "I exploit your personality before you exploit my personality so that I can control the situation," there is far more of a tendency toward sincerity. After all, friends are there confined in, not to impress.

Secondly, both parties are free to do what they want when not together. There is no obligation of an external nature binding them to duty. Paradoxically, when two people are not demanding things of each other, they so much more enjoy doing the things they do do for each other.

ONE END FREE

Thirdly, since each party is free, the nature of the relationship usually ends up moving toward understanding instead of exclusiveness, each recognizing that the other person has his or her own life to live.

Philosophically, as far as the future is concerned, it is easier to build a romance on a friendship than a friend on a romance although it usually takes some adjustments.

So all in all, friendship is an excellent reason for dating but I suppose it must have its weaknesses, too.

Name Check

Correction booths for the student directory will be located on the West Patio of the Wilkinson Center Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Students should check their name, address, and phone number to make sure everything is listed correctly.

These students who have already made corrections with information must make these corrections again with the student directory if they desire it to be listed correctly in the student directory, a student directory official said.

Sandor Kenya Concert Off; Brian Sullivan To Fill Date

An automobile accident in Germany has forced cancellation of a concert at BYU by Sandor Kenya, Hungarian leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera.

Injuries have forced Kenya to cancel his entire tour, according to Dawson Y. Cannon Jr., president of the BYU-Community Concert Association in Provo.

The show will go on, however, said Prof. Cannon. The date will be filled by Brian Sullivan of the Metropolitan Opera Company. The concert will be held Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

"A splendid characterization and brilliantly sung" was the rave review of Golberg of the Los Angeles Times regarding Sullivan after he sang the role of Herod in "Solemn" last season.

The New York Times called him "America's Heldentenor, the best Lehengberg since Melchior."

In addition to his performances at the San Francisco Opera, Mr. Sullivan is booked for concerts this season from coast to coast.

12 Prisoners Butchered At 'Little Dachau Death Camp'

by Richard H. Grawdak

SAIGON (UPI)—U. S. cavalrymen Tuesday overran a communist underground jungle prison and found the corpses of 12 inmates chained and butchered by North Vietnamese guards in an execution pit of the "Little Dachau Death Camp." Seven other prisoners survived the massacre.

The gruesome discovery was made by soldiers of the 1st Cavalry Division who pressed a spread-winged coastal sweep 290 miles northeast of Saigon that has already taken a toll of more than 2,800 communist dead or captured.

The three North Vietnamese prisoner camp bases had fled. Before they did, they counted up 18 youthful prisoners, tied and chained their arms together and dumped them into a pit near the camp. They set up a machine gun, bludgeoned the defenseless captive and then tossed hand grenades onto the writhing pile of prisoners.

NO MERCY

"This was the Viet Cong's Little Dachau Death Camp," said Col. Archie Hyde, the Air Cavalry's 1st Brigade commander whose men found the body-battered execution pit.

In Saigon, visiting Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara met with top U.S. military commanders and Vietnamese government leaders, who joined in an appeal for more U.S. troops.

TROOPS MOVE SOUTH

Informed sources said McNamara was considering sending American soldiers into the communist-dominated Mekong Delta south of Saigon in force for the first time.

The communists' jungle death camp was discovered after one of the survivors of the execution pit managed to free himself and make his way toward an advancing column of American troops.

Spc. Eddie Edmon, of Chicago, the point man in the cavalry column, was led to the scene by the survivor, Dan Van Cam. He smelled the pit before it came into sight.

Some of the battle-hardened cavalrymen held their noses. One retched at the sight.

Machete-wielding rebels littered the edge of the pit and were sprinkled over the corpses. Edmon said he saw unexpected hand grenades lying among the dead and the wounded.

Two of the dead wore North Vietnamese uniforms; one was believed to have vainly tried to defend his unit. The other victims were believed to have been eight captured South Vietnamese troops or youngsters who had resisted being "drafted" into the Viet Cong.

Young Cam told the Americans the Viet Cong had kidnapped him eight days ago because he sold a cow without permission.

He said three North Vietnamese guards ran the camp. They commanded a guard force of 11 Viet Cong recruited in South Viet Nam, two of them women.

But the North Vietnamese did not kill themselves, Cam said.

1st Lt. Thomas J. Meyer, 27, of Dallas, Texas, led a patrol that found the prison compound near the execution pit. At first glance it looked like any jungle village, thatched huts nestled under a blanket of jungle growth.

HIDDEN TUNNELS FOUND

Then Meyer's men looked inside the huts. They found tunnels, going down as far as 20 feet.

Johnson Now Has Power To Activate Reserves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House gave final approval Tuesday to a $58 billion defense appropriations bill, including authority for President Johnson to call up reserve units whenever he feels they are needed.

The measure, which goes to the Senate, would finance the nation's defense activities for the fiscal year that started July 1.

It passed had been delayed for months by a Senate-House disagreement over giving the President authority to activate reserves and national guardsmen for possible duty in Viet Nam. Johnson has never asked for such powers and has never indicated whether he would use them.

The final measure was a compromise reached by House and Senate negotiators on bills previously approved by the two branches of Congress.

Under the compromise, the President could call up reserve or guard units by merely declaring this necessary instead of proclaiming a national emergency as now required.

He also could call up individual ready reservists or guardsmen not assigned to or regularly participating in units, not having served at least 24 months active-duty and not having otherwise fully discharged statutory reserve requirements.

The defense secretary was under heavy guard and details of his tour of the front were not being released until he had visited an area and was safely on his way to another.

On Tuesday, he received an appeal for more U.S. troops to fight the war. Informed sources said he was considering sending American soldiers into the communist-dominated Mekong Delta in force for the first time.

FEW AMERICANS

American advisers are in the vast delta south of Saigon and air strikes have been flown by U.S. planes in the region, but no American troops have fought there.

The Melong stretches 150 miles west and southwest of Saigon to the Gulf of Siam and contains more than one-third of Viet Nam's population of approximately 15 million.

McNamara, on his eighth visit to Viet Nam, was not expected to see troops near the demilitarized zone separating North and South Viet Nam. More than 1,100 communists have been killed by body count in recent fighting with U.S. Marines and paratroopers in that area.

Informed sources said U.S. military commanders in the region joined Vietnamese government leaders in asking that U.S. troop strength be boosted beyond the total already programmed for 1966.

CaseAppealed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A lawyer for seven "girly" publications branded obscene by an Arkansas court told the Supreme Court today the state law used as a basis for the action was unconstitutional.

"We cannot tolerate a situation where freedom of expression is fixed by state lines," New York attorney Emanuel Redfield said. He was arguing in behalf of publishers of Gent, Swank, Bachelor, Cavalcade, Gentleman, Ace and Sir magazines.

In the first of three cases facing the court on the difficult question of obscenity laws, the magazines were appealing a Pine Bluff, Arkansas, jury holding that certain issues of the magazines were obscene.

Subsequently, by court order, the issues in question were ordered destroyed.

The judge who ordered the burning retained jurisdiction so future issues also could be banned if they were found to be obscene.

A special meeting to outline opportunities for awards to assist with graduate studies will be held Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the Multi-purpose Area of the Sam M. Family Living Center. It will outline specific award opportunities for prospective graduate students and indicate effective ways of achieving those awards.

"It would be highly unfortunate if any student who is eligible for one of these awards should miss it through lack of information about opportunities or deadlines," says Dr. Lloyd.

At the meeting Thursday, information will be given concerning the fellowship programs of Fullbright-Hays, Woodrow Wilson, Rhodes, Marshall, Danforth and Kent, NASA, National Defense Education Act, National Science Foundation, National Institutes of Health and Brigham Young University.

KBYU-TV To Present The American Civil War

"Storm over Sumpter," is the title of today's show on the American Civil War, to be presented by KBYU-TV channel 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Station Manager Earl J. Glade, Jr. said the presentation is the first of a series of 13 half-hour shows on the American Civil War.

AWARD WINNING

"The American Civil War," Sylvana Award-winning series, was created from the original photographs of Mathew B. Brady, famed pictorial historian of the tragic conflict. Over 3,000 photographs covering 700,000 square miles of battlefield were employed in the two-year filming project, which employed new stop-motion techniques, with the photos being synchronized in swiftly-flowing movement to sound, music and the narration of Allyn Edward.

"The American Civil War" series will be repeated each Saturday at 8 p.m. on KBYU-TV, Channel 11.

Cougar quarterback Virgil Carter filled the air with passes Saturday en route to setting a new Western Athletic Conference record. The Y signal caller holds many school and conference marks. His receivers here are Casey Boyette, Phil Odle, and Steve Ogden.

Record Book Attacked By Cougar Footballers

Brigham Young University's football team, loaded with ability, may force statistician Dave Schulte to print up a special book of records broken this season.

The Cougar gridironers have set 13 stadium, school, and conference marks already in the young football season, and are threatening to break many others before they're through.

Quarterback Virgil Carter and fullback John Ogden, who already had many records coming into the 1966 season, lead the onslaught.

Carter has set five this year and Ogden four.

Following are the records set or tied thus far this season:

STADIUM

Most passes attempted—31 by Virgil Carter (BYU vs. Utah State, (1966); Most touchdown passes—4 by Carter (BYU vs. USU, 1966) (BYU vs. Utah, 1965); Most punts—11 by Ron Stewart (USU vs. BYU, 1966).

Most punt returns—4 by Kent Oborn (BYU vs. USU, (1966); Most punt completed, one team—17 by BYU, Utah State (1965); Most touchdown passes, one team—4 by BYU vs. Utah (1965), Utah State (1966); Most first downs passing, one team—14 by BYU vs. Utah State, (1966).

Most team punts—11 by Utah State vs. BYU, (1966); Most yards on punts, one team—42 by Utah State vs. BYU, (1966).

SCHOOL

BYU Education Center Treats Children Who Suffer With 'Learning Disabilities'

Bill, ten years old, who has above-average intelligence, has been unable to learn the alphabet. His friend, Mary, about the same age, also has above-average intelligence, but she cannot read her school assignments or finish her work in class.

These two children suffer from "learning disabilities," and are typical of many school-age children from Utah County who are being treated at the BYU Education Center for the Diagnosis and Treatment of Learning Disabilities.

OPERATED BY BYU

The Education Center is operated by Brigham Young University in the remodeled College Building on lower campus. Dr. Betty D. Harrison, assistant professor of educational psychology at BYU, is coordinator for the center. She is assisted by Mrs. Ruth K. Hammom, who is demonstration teacher, a graduate assistant, and several graduate student trainees.

NOT RETARDATION

"Learning disabilities should never be considered to be the same as mental retardation," Dr. Harrison insists. "These children often have above-average intellect for their age group. The main difficulty is that a variety of problems may cause a child's ability to count, to read, or to perform physical tasks to be lessened."

The crucial part is in identifying the learning disability. Many times parents hesitate because they do not want their child to be considered "different" from his schoolmates. Dr. Harrison and her colleagues combat this feeling by stressing that basic to the treatment of the child is a wholesome recognition of individual differences.

There are many causes and a wide variety of learning disabilities. Some children are so physically active that their attention span will not allow them to finish one job adequately. Other children have an inability to communicate with others of their own age. Difficulty in learning to read is usually the most serious since it affects learning in other areas.

The Education Center assists in training public school personnel to work with learning disability students.

MANY EXAMPLES

Many examples can be given. One girl cannot write legibly because she lacks coordination between her eyes and her hand. She participates in directed exercises and chalkboard training. Some students from culturally deprived backgrounds simply have not had enough experience with objects and abstract words to enable them to get meaning from the printed page.

There are bright students who see, but whose eyes cannot readily pick out the right object from a background of many objects. These children are given specific training which will enable them to see detail. Others must learn that some letters of the alphabet and some words do not maintain position in space as a child does.

The letter "b" backward, letter "d" and "w" backward, becomes "saw." Between which see these and which interprets them, entitlement is lost. For children training in orientation, the teacher serves to the various directions in seeing their proper perspective.
